We are a collaborative team of over 40 cancer researchers, scientists, and communication experts.

Leadership

In September, 2011 NCI Director Dr. Harold Varmus appointed Dr. Trimble director of the NCI's new Center for Global Health. Between 1991 and 2011, Dr. Trimble was head of NCI's Gynecologic Cancer Therapeutics where he spearheaded the development of national and international cancer research strategy for the treatment of cervical, ovarian, and endometrial cancers. During that time, he was also Head of NCI's Quality of Cancer Care Therapeutics, Clinical Investigation Branch, Cancer Therapy Evaluation Program, Division of Cancer Treatment and Diagnosis. He led the planning committees for NIH Consensus Conferences on ovarian and cervical cancers and also drafted and coordinated NCI Clinical Announcements regarding chemoradiation for cervical cancer in 1999 and intraperitoneal chemotherapy for ovarian cancer in 2008.

Dr. Trimble graduated from Harvard College and the Johns Hopkins University of School of Medicine, then trained in obstetrics/gynecology at Vanderbilt University Medicine Center, public health at the Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health, and gynecologic oncology at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center. He has received two Public Health Service Commendation Medals, six NIH Merit Awards, and the NCI Director's Gold Star Award for his work at NCI.

Edward L. Trimble was appointed the first director of NCI's new Center for Global Health (CGH) in September, 2011. The NCI CGH is responsible for coordinating NCI's research relevant to global health and global cancer research, developing a strategic plan for research and implementation relevant to global cancer control, and strengthening collaboration with external stakeholders.

Before his appointment to the NCI CGH, Dr. Trimble was Head of Gynecologic Cancer Therapeutics in NCI's Division of Cancer Treatment and Diagnosis from 1991 to 2011. In that role, he spearheaded the development of national and international cancer research strategy for the treatment of cervical cancer, ovarian cancer, and endometrial cancer. He led the planning committees for NIH Consensus Conferences on ovarian and cervical cancers. In addition, he drafted and coordinated NCI Clinical Announcements regarding chemoradiation for cervical cancer in 1999 and intraperitoneal chemotherapy for ovarian cancer in 2008. He graduated from Harvard College and the Johns Hopkins University of School of Medicine, then trained in obstetrics/gynecology at Vanderbilt University Medicine Center, public health at the Johns Hopkins University Bloomberg School of Public Health, and gynecologic oncology at Memorial Sloan-Kettering Cancer Center.

Offsite Staff

To allow for close coordination and collaboration with partners and foreign organizations, CGH leverages three offices abroad with staff who focus on Asia, Africa, Europe, and South America.

- Beijing, China: Serves as a bridge between NCI resources, experts, networks, cancer researchers, and public health professionals in cancer prevention and control in East Asia.
- Delhi, India: Focuses on building partnerships to strengthen cancer research capacity and networks in the region.
- Brussels, Belgium: Coordinates collaborations with a range of European and international partners to promote cancer research and control in Europe and elsewhere.
- Buenos Aires, Argentina: Supports efforts in cancer research, research networks, and cancer control throughout Latin America.
